MOTORISTS HEED

tomobilists Go Into Effect June 15.

States may be used on the highways of Virginia not exceeding two periods in seven consecutive days in each calendar year. There is a string to this, however, in that in a case of conviction for violations of any of the clauses of the Virginia act, the guilty party must take out a Virginia license.

In the way of speed regolations a car is held down to eight miles an hour on is held down to eight miles an hour on the state law the court will be compelled to sentence the detectives to six months in the penitentiary, with an added penalty of a heavy fine, if they added penalty of a heavy fine, if they been erected, as has a stable, and teams way.

There is a string to this, however, in that in a case of conviction for carrying concealed weapons was preferred against four of them and they were held for the circuit court, their revolvers being kept for evidence.

curves or bends, or where the roadway is not plainly visible for a distance of 300 feet ahead, and at the intersection of prominent crossroads where such road or highway passes through the open country, and when passing another machine. There is also a limit of eight miles an hour in the business sections of cities or towns, and eight miles an hour at points on public highways.

of cities or towns, and eight miles an hour at points on public highways where there is a gathering of horses and persons. Otherwise, the rate of speed may be twenty miles an hour, except where special provisions for a reduction are made.

In one respect the Virginia act differs from the conventional in that one clause of the law demands that every car shall be provided with a lock, key, or other device to prevent its being set in motion, and no person shall allow a car operated by him to stand or remain unattended in any street, avenue, road, or other public place without first locking or making fast the car as above provided.

Another departure is a provision provided.

Another departure is a provision whereby any motorist violating the law shall be liable for damage if actually incurred in any accident, and in default of deposit of a sum in cash to pay for this damage, the car may be seized and impounded anywhere in any county or city of the State upon the order of the justice and may, by order of this same official, be sold to pay for the fine or damage. The justice, however, cannot adopt such harsh proceedings without

A good feature of the new law is that process incident to purchasing and mailing number plates, go to the State treasury as a special fund to be expended under the direction of the State highway commissioner in the rermanent improvement of the main highways of the State.

"The fear of possible tire trouble should never prevent the motorist from getting the full measure of service and enjoyment a car can give," said James A. Braden, of the Diamond Rubber Cornapan, "It is true, no doubt," he continued, "that this very thing detracts from the enjoyment of motoring in many cases. Nevertheless, it is entirely uncalled for, if good tires and of ample size for the load are selected and given the right kind of care, including sufficient inflation. The auto owner should not consider the tires indestructible, but neither need he suppose that hard work and lots of it is not expected. but neither need he suppose that work and lots of it is not expected em."

A subcommittee of five members of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has been selected to act on the Federal automobile license bill. Representative Wanger of Pennsylvania is chairman of the subcommittee. As a result of the visit last week of Charles T. Terry, chairman of the legislative committee of the American Automobile Association, an agreement on all the disputed points in the bill was reached. The bill will be redrawn and its phrase-ology changed in many respects.

The entries for the Glidden tour so far include two Premiers, three Chalmers. two Maxwells, a Cole, and a Parry. For the Chicago trophy the cars so far named are three Mollnes, a Lexington
